President's Message

ITF President Francesco Ricci Bitti at the Beijing Olympic Tennis Centre

It gives me great pleasure to introduce the Media Guide for the 2008 Olympic Tennis Event.

As one of the original sports at the first modern Games in Athens in 1896, tennis has a long Olympic history and this year marks the 20th anniversary of its return to the Olympic Games as a full medal sport. Having withdrawn from the Olympics after the Paris Games in 1924, tennis was absent until Seoul in 1988, when it was readmitted thanks to the combined efforts of former ITF President Philippe Chatrier, General Secretary David Gray and former ITF Vice President Pablo Llorens in addition to the great support of the then IOC President Juan-Antonio Samaranch.

Tennis has always been one of the most international of sports and the ITF has over 200 member nations who all benefit from our association with the Olympics. Our national associations receive support from their governments and National Olympic Committees that would not be available to them without our affiliation with the Olympic Games. In addition, tennis has benefited from the grass roots support provided worldwide through Olympic Solidarity.

I am sure that the magnificent Olympic Tennis Centre in Beijing will witness tennis of the highest quality as the world's best players compete for one of the most-coveted prizes in sport – an Olympic gold medal.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the IOC, BOCOG and the incredible number of people who have worked so hard to make these Games a success. I wish everyone involved in this event – the players, officials, media, volunteers, and spectators – an enjoyable and rewarding tournament.

Tennis in the Olympics

If there is one word that exemplifies the Olympics Games and, just as importantly, the Olympic spirit, it is excellence. Excellence not only in the level of the performance sought by every competitor but also in the proud, spectacular staging of the world's greatest sporting festival.

It is fitting, therefore, that for the third successive Olympic Games, the tennis event will be played in a magnificent new purpose-built stadium. This not only reflects the fact that tennis is now fully re-established as an Olympic sport, but also makes a major contribution to the promotion of tennis in particular and sport in general.

Tennis in China received a major boost at the 2004 Games in Athens when Tian Tian Sun and Ting Li won the women's doubles gold medal, China's first Olympic tennis medal of any colour, and the host nation will have high hopes of adding to that on home ground.

Because of the long period which tennis spent outside the Olympic family, it is easily forgotten that it was one of the sports included in the first modern Olympics in Athens in 1896. Since then the map of the world has frequently been re-drawn, all the more so in sporting terms and not least the way in which the great distinction between amateurs and professionals has virtually been eliminated.

A whole way of life has been transformed. Yet if there is one thing which has remained constant, it is surely the Olympic ideal, allowing the cherished Olympic flame, that inspiring emblem of fellowship and international friendship, to burn more brightly than ever.

Irishman John Boland, competing for a combined Great Britain and Ireland team, was the first Olympic tennis champion, taking gold in both singles and doubles events. The 1896 competition took place in a tent, with some matches being played outside in the centre of the Velodrome, a far cry from the magnificent Beijing Olympic Tennis Centre.

Women made their Olympic debut four years later in Paris and Charlotte Cooper (later Sterry) became the first woman to win an Olympic gold medal in any sport, when she won the women's singles title. Great Britain made a clean sweep of the four gold medals. Cooper also won the mixed title with Reginald Doherty, who was men's doubles champion with his brother Laurence, the men's singles gold medallist.

Perhaps unsurprisingly given the travelling difficulties of the time, few European players travelled to the 1904

Suzanne Lenglen (FRA)

Games in St. Louis and the hosts dominated the tennis event. Only men's singles and doubles events were held and American players swept every medal on offer with Beals Wright winning two gold medals.

The first London Games of 1908 saw some discipline and planning come into the general organisation. Many of the regulations and principles laid down then are still in Olympic use today, or at least form the basis of present day Olympic rules. The women's singles was reinstated and for the first time, both indoor and outdoor events were held.

On home ground, British players dominated both events, winning all six gold medals, led by Arthur Gore who won both men's singles and doubles titles at the indoor event, held at the Queen's Club. The outdoor event, held at the All-England Club, then situated at Worple Road, was contested by more nations than played at Wimbledon itself. Reginald Doherty claimed a third Olympic gold medal when winning the men's doubles title, bringing his overall medal count to four. He is still the only player in Olympic tennis history to win three gold medals and one of just three men to win four medals.

Logistical problems began to take their toll on the Olympic tennis event in Stockholm in 1912. Again both indoor and outdoor events were held and a mixed doubles competition was added to each, but the outdoor event conflicted with Wimbledon, depriving the event of many of the leading players of the era.

Interest in the indoor event was such that spectators queued for up to three hours to find a seat and members of the Swedish Royal Family attended on a daily basis. Frenchman Andre Gobert starred on the men's side, winning singles and doubles titles while Edith Hannam maintained British domination of women's tennis at the Olympic Games, winning the singles and mixed doubles titles.

The outdoor event was played in baking temperatures and the South African men thrived in the summer heatwave. Charles Winslow took the men's gold medal, defeating compatriot Harry Kitson over four exhausting sets before the pair teamed up to win the doubles title. France's Marguerite Broquedis, the singles champion and Germany's Dorothea Koring, who took the mixed doubles title with Heinrich Schomburgk, became the first non-British women to win an Olympic tennis gold medal. Sweden's Gunnar Setterwall and Brit Charles Dixon both picked up three medals in Stockholm, bringing their total to four, equalling Doherty's record tally.

With the 1916 Games cancelled due to the outbreak of the First World War, everyone re-assembled in Antwerp in 1920. Although there was desperately little time or opportunity to gather resources and properly organise the event, the 1920 Games were for the most part a huge success, if only in that they firmly re-established the Olympics. The tennis event again had its fair share of the problems but despite the noise from the nearby main stadium and the generally spartan conditions, the sheer enthusiastic delight at competing again put paid to any gripes.

Fifteen countries were represented in Antwerp but one player stood out – Suzanne Lenglen, the pride of France, who became one of the legendary figures in the game, easily won the women's singles, conceding just four games in total, and added the mixed doubles title for good measure.

Paris became the first city to host the modern Olympics twice in 1924 but again the organisation of the tennis event left a lot to be desired – a pity given that 142 competitors from 28 countries, including many of the top players of the time, were present, although French heroine Lenglen was absent through illness. Having not won a single Olympic tennis medal since sweeping the board in 1904, USA won all five gold medals with Vincent Richards, Helen Wills and Hazel Wightman taking two each. Wightman and Richard Williams won the mixed doubles event – the last time the event was held.

Kathleen "Kitty" McKane (Godfree), the newly-crowned Wimbledon champion, became the first player – and the only one to date – to win five Olympic tennis medals by collecting a silver medal in the women's doubles and a bronze in the singles in Paris to add to the three medals that she had won in Antwerp.

Unhappy at the relatively poor treatment of its sport over several Olympic Games, the International Lawn Tennis Federation (as it was known until 1977) suggested to the International Olympic Committee that it should be granted at least one representative on the IOC; be allowed to co-operate in the technical and material organisation of tennis at the Games; and requested that the IOC drop its demand for Wimbledon not to be held in any Olympic year. When the IOC refused to recognise any of the requests, the ILTF had little option but to withdraw tennis from Olympic competition.

Helen Wills (USA)

Yet deep down the spirit evoked by the Olympic flame was never wholly extinguished. Tennis appeared as a demonstration sport in Mexico in 1968. And then a long, determined campaign led by David Gray, then General Secretary of the ITF with enthusiastic and determined support from the ITF President, Philippe Chatrier, and Vice President, Pablo Llorens finally saw tennis return to the Olympics as a full medal sport at the Seoul Games in 1988. A successful 21-and-under demonstration event at Los Angeles in 1984 was attended by capacity crowds of more than 6,000 on a daily basis, who saw an 18-year-old Stefan Edberg and a 15-year-old Steffi Graf mark themselves out as future stars of the game when winning the men's and women's titles.

The success of this event, as well as the growing awareness that Olympic membership assists with the grass roots development of any sport, made the decision to readmit tennis to the Olympics seem appropriate. It was ultimately decided that the world's finest tennis players should once again be allowed to compete for gold medals, along with their leading counterparts in other sports at this greatest of all sports gatherings.

In Seoul, Graf added the Olympic title to the four majors that she had won in 1984 to complete what has become known as her "Golden Slam." Edberg fell in a marathon semifinal to Miloslav Mecir, who went on to defeat Tim Mayotte for the men's singles gold medal. USA won both doubles events through Ken Flach and Robert Seguso and Zina Garrison and Pam Shriver.

While not achieving its much-hoped for first Olympic tennis gold medal, Spanish players performed well at the 1992 Games in Barcelona. Arantxa Sanchez Vicario won singles bronze and doubles silver with Conchita Martinez while Jordi Arrese won a surprise silver in the men's singles. Arrese lost a marathon five-setter to Switzerland's Marc Rosset, who became the lowest-ranked Olympic singles champion, while on the women's side, Jennifer Capriati, played one of her greatest matches to end Graf's unbeaten Olympic run in the final.

Goran Ivanisevic won two bronze medals in Barcelona and created history by becoming the only man to win four consecutive five-set matches in one tournament. Germany's Boris Becker and Michael Stich and the USA's Gigi and Mary Jo Fernandez took the doubles' honours

The host nation was rewarded with triple gold at the Atlanta Olympics in 1996. The ever-popular Andre Agassi survived a tumultuous quarterfinal against Wayne Ferreira and swept to glory against Sergi Bruguera in the final, while Lindsay Davenport stopped Sanchez Vicario's quest for that elusive gold in the women's final.

The Spaniard grabbed another bronze medal alongside Martinez in the doubles to bring her total medal tally to four, the most by any player since 1924, as Gigi and Mary Jo Fernandez became the only Olympic tennis champions to successfully defend a title. Todd Woodbridge and Mark Woodforde won a first tennis gold medal for Australia in the men's doubles, having saved two match points in the semifinal.

"The Woodies" fell just short of emulating this feat in front of their home crowd in Sydney four years later, losing in the final to Sebastien Lareau and Daniel Nestor from Canada. Russia scored its first Olympic tennis success when Yevgeny Kafelnikov downed Tommy Haas to win the men's singles, something he cites as his greatest achievement, and the one he is most respected for back home.

The women's events were dominated by the Williams sisters. Venus defeated Elena Dementieva to win the singles' gold and then teamed with younger sister Serena to add doubles gold, becoming the first player to win double gold at an Olympic Games since 1924.

Four years later Nicolas Massu repeated that achievement when the Games returned to its spiritual home of Athens. The Chilean secured his nation's first-ever Olympic gold medal in any sport when he and Fernando Gonzalez saved four match points before defeating Nicolas Kiefer and Rainer Schuettler in the men's doubles final and less than 24 hours later he won another five-setter against Mardy Fish to take singles gold.

Belgium's Justine Henin-Hardenne (now Henin), having comeback from a 5-1 deficit in the final set of her semifinal, won gold in the women's singles, defeating Amelie Mauresmo. China won its first Olympic tennis medal of any colour when Ting Li and Tian Tian Sun defeated Virginia Ruano Pascual and Conchita Martinez, who became the only tennis player to win medals at three Olympic Games, having won silver in 1992 and bronze in 1996 in the same event.

Tennis is well and truly back in the Olympic family, and when one observes the joy and pride on the faces of those tennis players who have had the honour of carrying their country's Olympic flag in the opening ceremony, it is clear that, even in a sport where the top players can do so well financially, the five rings really do mean something very special.

Note: The 1906 Silver and Bronze medals in the Men's Singles and Mixed Doubles were awarded on the basis of the best performances against the winner or runner-up rather than as losing finalists or winner of the losing semi-finalists play-off. Therefore the Men's Singles Bronze was awarded to Zdenek Zemla who had taken a set off the Silver medalist Maurice Germot in the round of 16. The Mixed Doubles Silver was awarded to Georgios Simiriotis/Sophia Marinou as they had taken nine games off the champions in the semi-final, and the Bronze Medal went to the losing finalists who had won one game less. The Women's Singles and Men's Doubles however did have the usual bronze play-off.

Miscellaneous

Gigi Fernandez and Mary Jo Fernandez (USA) are the only players to successfully defend an Olympic tennis title, winning the women's doubles gold medal in 1992 and 1996.

Conchita Martinez (ESP) is the only tennis player to win medals at three different Olympic Games, winning silver in 1992, bronze in 1996, and silver in 2004, all in the women's doubles event.

Five men and two women have won three medals at the same Olympics:

Laurence Doherty (GBR), Reginald Doherty (GBR) and Harold Mahony (IRL) – 1900

Charles Dixon (GBR) – 1912

Vincent Richards (USA), Suzanne Lenglen (FRA) and Kathleen McKane (GBR) – 1920

This was only possible in Paris (1900) and Stockholm (1912) for men and at Antwerp (1920) and Paris (1924) for both men and women, as these are the only occasions that a mixed doubles event has been held.

Summary of Rules & Regulations

Rules and Regulations Summary

Size and Composition of Draws

The maximum numbers of players accepted into the Competition shall be as follows:

Men's/Women's Singles

The men's and women's singles will each consist of a draw of 64 players with not more than 4 players from any one country, comprising:

- 56 direct acceptances
- 6 ITF Places (Wild Cards)
- 2 Invitations (Wild Cards)

Men's/Women's Doubles

The men's and women's doubles events will each consist of a draw of 32 teams, with not more than 2 teams from any one country, comprising:

- 24 direct acceptances
- 8 ITF Places (Wild Cards)

Criteria for Selection

Men's/Women's Singles

56 players will receive direct acceptance into the men's singles at the Olympic Tennis Event based on the recognised international singles computer rankings of 9 June 2008.

A National Association/National Olympic Committee who has more than 4 players eligible for direct acceptance into the men's/women's singles should select its 4 highest ranked eligible players based on the computer ranking. Any player nominated and accepted for the singles event will automatically be eligible for selection for the doubles event.

Men's/Women's Doubles

The ITF will select doubles teams from doubles nominations received from National Associations for direct acceptance, taking into account the recognised international singles and doubles computer rankings of 9 June 2008 and the number and names of players already accepted into the singles events. A maximum of 2 doubles teams, from any one country may compete in the men's and women's doubles event.

Any doubles players ranked 10 or better based on the recognised international doubles computer rankings of 9 June 2008, will be eligible for selection for direct acceptance for the men's/women's doubles event, providing,

- his/her nominated partner has a recognised international singles or doubles ranking on 9 June 2008,
- he/she and his/her partner have been nominated as a doubles team by their respective National Association /National Olympic Committee and
- the nomination does not bring the total number of male or female competitors from that country to more than 6.

ITF Places and Invitations

Men's/Women's Singles

The six ITF places shall be selected taking into consideration the following:

- Singles Computer Ranking
- Whether the country is represented in the Tennis Event
- Number of players on site
- Geographical location

The two (2) Invitations in each singles event shall be selected by a Tripartite Commission comprising the IOC, NOCs and ITF. These Invitations will comprise high-level players who are not direct acceptances, but who belong to NOCs entering few competitors in other sports. The final decision regarding the technical level of the player for the allocation of the Invitations will rest with the ITF.

Men's/Women's Doubles

8 ITF places shall be selected for the men's and women's doubles event. Selection will be based on the total number of athletes directly accepted into the Tennis Event at the 2004 Olympic Games, the recognised international computer rankings and geographical location.

Special Ranking / Entry Protection

The Special Ranking and Entry Protection for the recognised international computer rankings will be used for selection purposes. The ranking in effect at the time of selection will apply.

The Competition

All matches shall be the best of 3 sets, except for the men's singles and doubles finals which shall be the best of 5 sets. The tie-break shall operate in every set except the fifth set in the men's singles and doubles finals and the third set in all other matches, when an advantage set shall be played.

Bronze Medal

Bronze medal play-off matches will be held in each event between the losing semifinalists to determine the bronze medal winners.

Entries

Only National Associations which have been members of the ITF prior to 1 January 2008 may nominate players for participation in the 2008 Olympic Tennis Event. For the purposes of such eligibility, both Full and Associate Members of the ITF may participate.

Age Eligibility

In the case of male players the player has reached, or will have reached, the age of 14 years by 10 August 2008. In the case of female players, the player has reached the age of 15 years by 10 August 2008.

Selection Dates

- (a) By no later than 12 June 2008, the ITF shall confirm to National Associations/NOCs the names of players eligible for direct acceptance for singles and/or doubles based on the international computer rankings of 9 June 2008.
- (b) By no later than 23 June 2008 the National Associations/NOCs shall:
 - i) advise the ITF which of their eligible players have been selected to compete in the singles and doubles competitions; and
 - ii) submit to the ITF their applications for ITF places.
- (c) By no later than 2 July 2008 the ITF shall select the ITF places and advise the National Associations/NOCs.
- (d) By no later than 2 July 2008 the Tripartite Commission (IOC/NOCs/ITF) shall select the (2) Invitations for each of the men's and women's singles events.

Number of Nominations per Country

- (a) A maximum of 6 men and 6 women may be nominated by any one country.
- (b) A maximum of 4 men and 4 women per country may compete in the men's and women's singles.
- (d) A maximum of 2 doubles teams per country may compete in the men's and women's doubles.

Eligibility to Compete and Conditions of Competing

Any tennis player is eligible for nomination to the Olympic Tennis Event provided he/she is in good standing with his/her National Association and the International Tennis Federation ("ITF") as follows:

- i) is not under a suspension imposed by his/her National Association, or by the International Tennis Federation, or through the imposition of a suspension under a Code of Conduct accepted and approved by the ITF.
- ii) is accepted by his/her National Association as being under its jurisdiction while competing in events for which he/she has been nominated by his/her Association.
- iii)* makes himself/herself available for selection to represent his/her country in any of the International Team Championships of the ITF for two (2) of the following years - 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008 - provided however that one of those years is either 2007 or 2008. During the time of such competition, the player must agree to accept the jurisdiction of his/her National Association.
- iv) respects the spirit of fair play and non-violence at all times.
- v) accepts the conditions of entry of the events he/she enters, including the conditions of any Code of Conduct adopted for those events.
- vi) agrees to undergo any medical control and anti-doping tests which are in operation during the event. Female players must agree to femininity control testing if requested.

 In Davis Cup or Fed Cup 2005, 2006, 2007 or 2008 a player who makes himself/herself available for selection for one Tie will be deemed to have fulfilled the requirement for that year.*

Withdrawals

(c) Singles

- i) Having received direct acceptance into the 2008 Olympic Tennis Event a player who withdraws for reasons of illness, injury or bereavement prior to 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008 may be replaced by his/her National Association/NOC with an alternative player from its country who was included on the list of players eligible for direct acceptance sent to the National Association/NOC by the ITF.

If there is no other player on the list from the country from which the player withdrew the next highest ranked eligible player, based on the international computer rankings of 9 June 2008, will gain direct acceptance providing such player does not bring the number of players from that nation to more than 4 in the men's and women's singles events.

- ii) A player who withdraws for reasons other than illness, injury or bereavement prior to 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008 will be replaced by the ITF with the next highest ranked nominated player based on the international computer rankings of 9 June 2008, providing such player does not bring the number of players from that country to more than 4 in the men's and women's singles events. In this case, the next eligible highest ranked player will gain direct acceptance.
- iii) After 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008, if a player withdraws from the 2008 Olympic Tennis Event a player who is on site and not competing in the singles event will be selected by the Referee and the ITF Technical Delegates to take his/her place. The selection shall be based on the latest recognised international singles computer rankings and the selected player must not bring the number of players from that country in the men's or women's singles events to more than 4.

(b) Doubles

Having received direct acceptance into the 2008 Olympic Tennis Event a player or team who withdraws for reasons of illness, injury or bereavement prior to 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008 may be replaced by the National Association/ NOC with an alternative player or team from its country who was included on the list of players eligible for direct acceptance sent to the National Association/NOC by the ITF.

- i) If there is no other player or team on the list from the country from which the player or team withdrew the next highest ranked eligible team, based on the international doubles computer rankings of 9 June 2008, shall gain direct acceptance providing such country does not already have 2 teams in the appropriate doubles event.
- ii) If a player or team withdraws for reasons other than illness, injury or bereavement prior to 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008, the team will be replaced by the ITF by the next highest ranked nominated doubles team based on the international doubles computer rankings of 9 June 2008, providing such country does not already have 2 teams in the appropriate doubles event.
- iii) If one player from a team withdraws after 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008 that player may be replaced by a player from the same country already in the singles event.
- iv) If a doubles team withdraws after 12.00 midnight GMT on 2 August 2008, that team shall be replaced by a team comprising two players in the singles event. The team will be selected by the Referee and ITF Technical Delegates.

Medals

The prizes for the men's and women's singles and doubles competition will be awarded in accordance with the Olympic Charter.

First Prize

The winners of each event will receive a silver-gilt medal and a diploma.

Second Prize

The winners of the second prize in each event will receive a silver medal and a diploma.

Third Prize
